GENERAL

The Soviet decision to attend UN technical discussions on improving East-West trade was "taken at a very high level," according to information given to the Secretariat for the Economic Commission for Europe by a Soviet member of the UN Secretariat. The source, who has just returned from Moscow, also emphasized that the Soviet participants would be very high ranking officials of the Ministry of Foreign Trade and that this was further evidence of Soviet "serious intentions."

The US delegation to the Economic Commission for Europe considers that, at the August 20 meeting, the Soviet bloc will probably make offers of a substantial quantity of grain and perhaps timber, demanding strategic commodities in return. In this connection, the Soviet delegate has informed the Secretariat that the USSR is in a position to self Western Europe somewhat more than one and a half million tons of coarse grains during each of the next five years against "appropriate counterdeliveries." Information reaching the Secretariat suggests that Satellite harvests are very good and that Rumania, for example, may be able to export a million tons of wheat this year.

Comment: The Soviet Orbit has been encountering increasing difficulties in obtaining strategic commodities, because of the growing effectiveness of the Western export control program and because Western nations have been able to arrange alternative sources of supply for goods needed from the Soviet bloc. If unable to obtain desired commodities for Soviet grain through multilateral negotiations, the Soviet Orbit could utilize this meeting in order to attempt to split the Western nations on export control policy, or to gain information that would improve the Orbit's bargaining position in future bilateral negotiations.

Chiang Kai-shek orders demonstrations against US and UK. Chiang Kai-shek has ordered his cabinet to incite anti-American and anti-British demonstrations as a protest against Nationalist. Chima's exclusion from the proposed Japanese peace treaty. Chiang also wants to show that he is still in control of Formosa and can cause trouble if not accorded full consideration, and to add a bargaining point in his aegotiations for US aid. Chiang blames his Foreign Minister and Secretary-General for the present Nationalist position. The Chean Li-fu clique, which supports Chiang but is not part of the government, will attempt to used be present crists to bring about the downfall of the Premier and the cabinet. Comment: Chimese Nationalist objections to the US-UK draft of the Japanese peace treaty have been vigorously advanced since the official release of the terms on 12 July. While an anti-British program is possible in view of the UK's policy toward Communist Chima, the Nationalists realize that an anti-US campaign might seriously hamper continued US economic and military aid. The proferred resignations of various Nationalist officials, including the Premier and Foreign Minister, have been ascribed to the current "crists." 5. The Minister stated that his government was extremely reluctant to admit so large an increment. In conclusion, he said that Indonesia would return the group to China "even if it means a diplomatic incident."

Comment: Several days ago, the Foreign Minister told Cochran that Indonesia originally had approved only a fifteenmember staff for the Chinese Communist Embassy in Djakarta. The twenty additional members will increase the staff in Djakarta to a total of eighty. The Indonesian Government has never fully appreciated the menace of Communism and is probably as much concerned over the diplomatic slight by the Chinese Communists as it is over the prospect of increased Chinese Communist activity.

6. Oil company dividends may be withheld from Iran:

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company probably will withhold from the Iranian Government 1,600,000 pounds, Iran's share of the company's forthcoming 1950 profits distribution dividend, if n the Iranian atmosphere." It may, however.

there is "no improvement in the Iranian atmosphere." It may, however, use this sum as a "sweetener" if there is any progress towards a settlement of the dispute.

Comment: The AIOC excuse for withholding payment would be that Iran has already received 7,000,000 pounds in advance royalties this year, and that this includes a share of 1950 profits. The UK continues to assume that the application of financial and other forms of pressure, in the present circumstances, is the best means of eventually bringing the Iranians to terms. The British Government believes that a more conciliatory policy would be regarded as a sign of weakness, both by the Iranians and by domestic UK critics.

Comment: An inter-Satellite economic entente of this nature has been discussed off and on for several years and is probably a major goal of CEMA, the Soviet-controlled Council for Economic Mutual Assistance. Current economic planning in the three countries is consonant with this target.

Czechoslovakia and Poland signed an agreement in 1948 to cooperate in developing the Moravian-Silesian Basin into a second Ruhr, although little has been accomplished to implement its provisions. Poland, with extensive aid from the USSR, is expanding its raw steel making facilities under the current Six Year Plan (1950-55). The Czechoslovak Five-Year Plan substantiates the foregoing report that this country will become the heavy industry center of Eastern Europe.

The Soviet Union, reversing its post-war looting activities, is currently rebuilding the extensive World War II synthetic fuel production facilities in East Germany. Goals for 1955 include the production of 780,000 tons of gasoline and 475,000 tons of diesel oil, in addition to special products such as jet fuel, aviation gasoline and lubricating oils.

WESTERN EUROPE

9. Comments on Berlin trade impasse:

The trade impasse continues in Berlin, with the USSR showing no sign of permitting the free flow of Berlin exports. In retaliation, the West is withholding approval of the interzonal trade agreement; the East German Government has reacted by stopping coal supplies to West Berlin and is threatening to cut off electric power deliveries. To alleviate the hardship inflicted on West Berlin manufacturers, US authorities are considering the use, on a small scale, of additional commercial airliners to move most of the backlogged goods out of Berlin.

In the event this measure proves inadequate, a military airlift could be started, though such a step is considered too spectacular and far-reaching in its implications for the moment. The

-8-

West Berlin Senate, in an extraordinary session on 18 July, talked in terms of "preparing for difficulties," a new blockade, and the substitution of Berlin for Korea as a target of Soviet activities. The spirit of resistance among the Berliners was evident at the meeting. Some Berlin leaders, including Mayor Reuter, feel that the present situation will be alleviated only when Berlin acquires a guaranteed "open corridor" to the West.

40. Precarious coalition is in prospect for France:

The US Embassy in Paris does not anticipate an early solution of the party differences that now prevent the formation of a government. It still appears certain that the next government will be Centrist, without Gaullist support, and based on a compromise among the heterogeneous partners who campaigned together against both Communists and Gaullists.

Nevertheless, Socialist sentiment against participation is increasing, partly because non-Gaullist Rightists have recently voted with the Gaullists to deprive Socialists of Assembly chairmanships. The thorniest issue dividing the middle-of-the-road parties is that of state aid to church schools. A compromise appears possible on the Socialist demand for wage increases geared automatically to price rises.

A few prominent leaders believe that the only government possible at this time is one including the Gaullists and excluding the Socialists.

Comment: Inasmuch as a government must be formed before the Assembly can adjourn for its annual vacation in August, it is most unlikely that the next government can be based on a sound compromise on the church-school question, or even on the wage issue. Hence for at least the next two months it can be expected that France will be governed by a weak middle-of-the-road coalition. Without the Socialists, it will be a minority government; with them, it will be committed only to temporary and superficial compromises.

I. Ceup d'etat planned in Bolivia: Fifty-two crude bombs, manufactured by mer of the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement, were seized at Catavi last week and 20 persons were arrested In Indian entering Catavi on the night of 19 July carried 120 rifle cartridges. many more cartridges were probably smuggled in the same way. Comment: Bolivia is now in dire need of foreign exchange, and a further weakening of its economy would seriously threaten the country's stability. There have been several reports that the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement will attempt a coup on 6 August. On this date Congress would have chosen the president if the Junta had not sullified the May elections in which the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement candidate received a large plurality but not the required majority. The army apparently is still loyal to the Junta had not sullified the May elections in which the Nationalist Revolutionary Movement candidate received a large plurality but not the required majority.	. 1						****
